PenSure Indemnity Check provides legal advice on indemnity and insurance terms in a wide range of commercial agreements to identify whether contractual obligations are likely to be covered by insurance arrangements.

Every day, scores of Australian businesses enter into commercial agreements, many for multi-million dollars, without fully considering - let alone understanding - whether contract terms could leave them uninsured. For example, insurers typically exclude cover for any risks an insured “assumes” under an agreement. This means that insurers will not cover you if you agree to take on someone else’s liabilities (i.e. liabilities the law would not normally impose on you).

Secondly, agreements often contain specific terms which oblige one party to take out liability insurance for another. If you have agreed to arrange this insurance on specific terms, and do not understand or meet those particular obligations, you may find yourself uninsured.

PenSure is a cost-effective, risk management service provided by trusted, highly experienced insurance lawyers to help you quickly and confidently identify potential uninsured contractual risks and obtain the right liability insurance.
