23 FEBRUARY 2015 | INSURANCE & HEALTH LAW

A great deal of insurance case law emerges from disputes involving property claims. We believe that the lawyers in our Insurance team should be experienced in managing these types of disputes.

Due to our expertise in this area, a number of key local and overseas insurers retain us to manage their first-party property claims on a regular basis. They know that we can handle complex, strategic and important first-party property matters, especially those involving coverage issues, fraud or catastrophic weather events.

On a daily basis we advise insurers on a broad range of industrial special risks (ISR), contract works, contract all risks (CAR) and other property policies.

Furthermore, we can assist our clients to manage their relationships with their insureds, whether they are multinational corporations, public entities, small-to-medium enterprises, not-for-profits, or other organisations with property exposures.
